

Mobile Sound Exhibitions and Sculptures

The MobileMusicMuseum encourages people to make music and understand the science of sound!

From found objects that produce sound to body music and music-playing game rules, from various noisemakers and musical instruments to sound sculptures, the MobileMusicMuseum has been collecting, preserving and developing musical objects from all over the world and encouraging music making for 20 years.

The MobileMusicMuseum does not have a fixed roof or permanent exhibition space. It moves through Europe to display exhibits, exhibitions, shows and huge interactive soundsculptures, public outdoor and indoor events, schools, museums, science centres or festivals. Devoted to the subject Music and Sound this mobile temporary approach has many good points: presenters are not exposed to sound and noise too long and exhibits and audiences do not wear out.
